

Basic Admission Policy for Self-Supported International Students Applying to the Integrated Science Program (ISP) at Hokkaido University (Undergraduate Entry, 2019 Enrollment)

1. Program Name

Integrated Science Program (ISP)

2. Purpose and Objective

The ISP is a cross-disciplinary educational program for international students interested in pursuing a degree in sciences. The program fundamentally consists of a four-year Bachelor's degree and a two-year Master's degree. Hokkaido University has also implemented an advanced graduation initiative, meaning that highly motivated and capable students will have the opportunity to graduate from the Bachelor's and Master's components in 3.5 and 1.5 years, respectively.

The objective of the ISP at Hokkaido University is to instruct and nurture students to be world leaders in a wide variety of disciplines such as those rooted in the natural sciences, applied sciences and business-orientated careers. The foundation of the program is based upon building expertise and a robust knowledge based in the core sciences, and also includes elements of the liberal arts and business studies to provide students with a versatile and well-rounded education to pursue innovation in their future endeavors.

3. Applicants We Are Seeking

The ISP is best suited for prospective students that exhibit:

- A passion for studying a broad range of subjects across the natural sciences;
- An inclination to major in a discipline of the natural sciences (physics, chemistry or biology);
- Enthusiasm to live and study in a multicultural/multilingual environment;
- A drive to contribute to the wider global society by building a future career as an international specialist or researcher with a rich background knowledge based in the natural sciences.

4. School and Graduate School Affiliation

During the Bachelor's component, the students will be affiliated with a department within the School of Science: Department of Physics, Chemistry, and Biology. Following the completion of the BSc degree program, students will move on to the Master's program which will be hosted by one of the many graduate schools at the university (e.g., Graduate School of Science, Chemical Sciences and Engineering, Life Science, Engineering, Environmental Science, Agriculture). Students will select the school themselves, with each graduate school requiring an entrance examination for admittance.

5. Student Intake

Several students

Six months after admittance, students will be assigned to a specific department based upon the individual's interests, grades, and credits accumulated during that time.

6. Date of Program Admission
